Dear Mr Frampton,

I am writing to apologise for wasting your time at Bartlett lodge. I am also embarrassed about trampling all over the flower beds that Mr Grim has been looking after for the Hall family. I am really sorry for being on the balcony of the house, I was only trying to get Susie's aeroplane back. I was very worried when I thought the gas fire in the room had been left on while the family is away. I can now see I was wrong. I am extremely grateful to you for not calling the police and I really regret my actions.

Yours Sincerely

Master P Loughlin
